

Teachers' Training Program in Vietnam

Teachers' training programme in Vietnam was organized successfully.

The program started in Nong Lam University (NLU), Faculty of Fisheries welcoming the participants. NLU presented their course structure, on-campus laboratory facilities including the one run by Biomin Company where students get opportunity to learn. On the second day, the project team also discussed about internships, and training programs. Students were also asked about their feedback about the new courses and the methods of teaching by their lecturers.

On the third day all the group moved to Can Tho City and visited a Pangasius farm where students work as interns. Participants were again welcomed at Can Tho University. The project also had good interactions with teachers and the students to improve the current courses, programmes and the teaching methods.

At the end, Project team had its meeting to discuss about the progress and the future plans. The project Coordinator thanked to all the participants, organizers and students for making the program very successful.
